Defendants International Game Technology (“IGT” or the “Company”), Thomas J. Matthews, and Patrick W. Cavanaugh hereby move to dismiss the Consolidated Class Action Complaint for Violation of the Federal Securities Laws (the “Complaint”) pursuant to the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (“Reform Act” or “PSLRA”), 15 U.S.C. §§ 78u-4, 78u-5, and Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 9(b) and 12(b)(6). The motion is based on this notice; the accompanying memorandum of points and authorities; the Declaration of Jacob T. Veltman and exhibits thereto (“Ex. ___”); the Request for Judicial Notice; the papers, records and pleadings in this action; such other papers that may be filed at or before the hearing on this motion; and any other matters properly before the Court.

Defendants respectfully request that the Court hold oral argument on this Motion.

INTRODUCTION

This is a classic “missed quarter” securities case. IGT did not foresee the extent of the recent recession or the toll this would take on the gaming industry and the Company during 2008. Over the course of that year, it became apparent that casino operators generally would not have the capital or credit to fund new construction, expansion, or major machine replacements in the near future. IGT warned that the faltering economy would likely impact its business. IGT lowered its financial projections. In order to generate additional near-term sales, the Company refocused some of its efforts from the ongoing development of server-based gaming technology to emphasize development of individual games. Ultimately, however, IGT did not meet its revised earnings forecasts for the second and fourth quarters of fiscal 2008 (ended March and September 2008) and this lawsuit followed.

The Reform Act was designed to address and deter precisely this type of litigation. “If a company fails to satisfy its announced earnings projections – because of changes in the economy . . . – the company is likely to face a lawsuit.” H.R. Conf. Rep. No. 104-369, 104th Cong., 1st Sess. at 43 (1995), reprinted in 1995 U.S.C.A.A.N. 697, 740 (“Conference Report”). Congress enacted heightened substantive and pleading standards to “put an end to the practice

1 of pleading ‘fraud by hindsight.’” In re Silicon Graphics, Inc. Sec. Litig., 183 F.3d 970, 988
 2 (9th Cir. 1999). The Reform Act also expressly eliminated any private cause of action based on 3 forward-looking statements accompanied by meaningful warnings. Because IGT provided just 4 such cautionary language, the Complaint should be dismissed.

5 BACKGROUND AND SUMMARY OF ALLEGATIONS

6 IGT is a global company specializing in the design, manufacture, and marketing of 7 computerized gaming equipment (such as its “Wheel of Fortune” slot machines), network 8 systems, licensing and services. ¶ 3¹; see Ex. 9 (2007 Annual Report) at 3-15. The Company is 9 Nevada’s largest manufacturer, with the majority of its 4,000 North American employees
 10 located in the state. Ex. 22 (2009 Annual Report) at 11. IGT reports two revenue streams – 11 gaming operations and product sales. See, e.g., Ex. 7 (2007 Form 10-K) at 4. The majority of 12 IGT’s revenue comes from gaming operations, e.g., sharing recurring slot machine revenues on 13 a participation basis and other similar arrangements. Ex. 9 at 4. Product sales include machine 14 sales (slots and other machines) as well as non-machine sales (network systems, parts, game 15 conversion kits, equipment, services and licenses). Id.

16 The proposed Class Period in this action runs from November 1, 2007 through October 17 30, 2008. ¶ 2. Even before this time, IGT had started developing server-based (“sbTM” or 18 “SB”) gaming technology. See ¶¶ 20-23. Server-based technology offers a new business 19 model for machine games. Today, most slot machines are single-purpose boxes where just 20 changing the game offered requires physical installation of new hardware and software.
 21 Migration to server-based gaming eventually will allow gaming machines to be monitored, 22 controlled or changed from a central location with the “flip of a switch” – giving additional 23 flexibility to casino operators and providing gamblers with an experience that might be tailored 24 to their individual preferences. See ¶ 22. More than that, the new technology will allow the operator to engage and interact with players on the machines (e.g., to make show reservations or provide complimentary meals) and provide an experience tailored to the players' individual preferences. See id. This exciting new technology has been a long time in the making. In 2007, IGT advised that it did not even plan to market sb™ products commercially until some point in 2009. ¶ 27; see Ex. 7 at 24. IGT warned investors that innovations like server-based gaming products would be important to the Company's long-term success. See, e.g., Ex. 3 (8/6/07 Form 10-Q) at 34.

During 2007 and 2008, the economy was spiraling downward into a recession. As the Complaint concedes, there was a "difficult industry downturn driven by fewer new casino openings and slowing demand for gambling machines." ¶ 24.

IGT cautioned that the economic downturn could have a negative impact on its business and results. See, e.g., Ex. 9 at 18. The Company provided guidance as to projected quarterly

1 earnings per share (“EPS”) in a series of quarterly earnings conference calls from November 1, 2 2007 to July 17, 2008. ¶¶ 26, 40, 53, 61. As the year went on and the economy worsened, IGT
3 disclosed downward revisions in its expectations for future quarters and warned about specific 4 negative trends. IGT’s stock price declined after each of its fiscal 2008 quarterly earnings
5 announcements. See Ex. 1 (IGT historical stock prices); ¶¶ 29, 43, 56, 64. The Company, 6 however, did not foresee the depth and length of the recession. While IGT met its projected 7 EPS range in the first and third quarters of fiscal 2008, it fell short of lowered expectations in 8 the second quarter (ended March 2008) and fourth quarter (ended September 2008).

9 In July 2009, nine months after IGT announced its fourth quarter earnings shortfall, 10 plaintiffs filed this action. The original complaint challenged the EPS projections made on the 11 conference calls, alleging among other things that

12 Defendants had diverted substantial funds to the development of the Company’s SB 13 and AVP gaming platforms, which materially compromised the Company’s growth prospects and undermined Defendants’ optimistic statements;

14 and that

15 IGT was unable to develop and market its SB and AVP gaming platforms within the 16 time frame that Defendants had represented[.]

17 Dkt. No. 1, ¶ 30. Plaintiffs have since dropped their claims related to IGT’s AVP products and 18 changed their story on server-based gaming development. The theory that IGT was unable to 19 develop and market its sb™ products was no longer viable after IGT announced its successful 20 sb™ technology installation at Las Vegas’ CityCenter, which opened in December 2009. Ex.
21 23 (12/21/09 press release) at 1. Thus, plaintiffs no longer allege that IGT was unable to 22 develop and market sb™ products; instead they complain that CityCenter did not get “version 23 4.0” of sb™. See ¶ 57(b). Plaintiffs no longer allege that IGT spent too much developing sb™;
24 instead they contend that IGT “did not make it a priority.” ¶¶ 34(b), 49(b).

25 The current Complaint still focuses on IGT’s conference call EPS projections, but it
26 also takes issue with certain statements at analyst conferences and in two press releases announcing sb™ deals. Plaintiffs concede that defendants' statements were a "series of disclosures of the truth." ¶ 4. Plaintiffs, however, contend that these disclosures were not proper attempts to adjust expectations as the economy worsened in 2008, as they only "slowly and partially reveal[ed] the truth about IGT's business, operations and prospects." ¶ 88. The Complaint alleges that during the Class Period, defendants knew but failed to provide prompt disclosure of issues associated with server-based technology (¶¶ 34(b)-(c), 49(b)-(c), 49(f), 57(b), 57(e), 65(d)); the extent and impact of declines in game play levels (¶¶ 34(a), 49(a), 57(a), 65(a)); that demand would be hurt by competition and lack of interest in IGT's products (¶¶ 34(e), 49(e), 57(d), 65(c)); and that IGT did not control expenses (¶¶ 34(d), 49(d), 57(c), 65(b)). Plaintiffs contend that as a result, defendants knew that IGT's EPS forecasts were unreasonable. ¶¶ 34(f), 49(g), 57(f), 65(e).
27

ARGUMENT

I. LEGAL STANDARDS

To state a claim under Section 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and Rule 10b-5, a complaint must allege: (1) a false statement or omission of material fact, (2) scienter, (3) transaction causation, (4) reliance, (5) economic loss, and (6) loss causation. Dura Pharms., Inc. v. Broudo, 544 U.S. 336, 341-42 (2005). Section 20(a) claims for "controlling person liability" require a primary violation of the federal securities laws; if there is no viable Section 10(b) claim, the Section 20(a) claim also fails. Lipton v. Pathogenesis Corp., 284 F.3d 1027, 1035 n.15 (9th Cir. 2002).

Plaintiffs' securities claims are subject to the stringent pleading standards of the Reform Act.² "The purpose of [the Reform Act's] heightened pleading requirement was generally to eliminate abusive securities litigation and particularly to put an end to the practice of pleading ² Securities fraud complaints also are subject to Rule 9(b)'s requirement of pleading with particularity. In re Glenfed Inc. Sec. Litig., 42 F.3d 1541, 1545 (9th Cir. 1994).

1 ‘fraud by hindsight.’” In re Vantive Corp. Sec. Litig., 283 F.3d 1079, 1084-85 (9th Cir. 2002).

2 To state a claim, a complaint must:

3 specify each statement alleged to have been misleading, the reason or reasons why
4 the statement is misleading, and, if an allegation regarding the statement or omission
5 is made on information and belief, the complaint shall state with particularity all facts 6 on which that belief is formed.

6 15 U.S.C. § 78u-4(b)(1), and 7 with respect to each act or omission alleged to violate this chapter, state with 8 particularity facts giving rise to a strong inference that the defendant acted with the 9 required state of mind.

9 15 U.S.C. § 78u-4(b)(2). A complaint shall be dismissed if it does not satisfy these 10 requirements. 15 U.S.C. § 78u-4(b)(3)(A).

11 In addition to these general requirements, the Reform Act also created a “Safe Harbor”
12 for forward-looking statements accompanied by meaningful cautionary language. 15 U.S.C.
13 § 78u-5(c); Employers Teamsters Local Nos. 175 & 505 Pension Trust Fund v. Clorox Co., 353 14 F.3d 1125, 1132 (9th Cir. 2004). As explained further below, such statements cannot be the 15 basis of liability for securities fraud. Id. at 1133 (affirming summary judgment; “we conclude 16 that sufficient warnings accompanied the [forward-looking statements] and Clorox is protected 17 from liability under the safe harbor provision”).

18 II. THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO PLEAD ANY ACTIONABLE MISSTATEMENT 19 OR OMISSION

20 A. The Complaint Does Not Challenge IGT’s Actual Financial Results

21 Plaintiffs do not dispute that IGT actually achieved the “record results” and “peak 22 earnings and margins” announced during fiscal 2007 and the first quarter of fiscal 2008. ¶¶ 25, 23 29, 33, 37-38, 43, 45, 58-59. Instead, the Complaint alleges that IGT’s truthful reporting of 24 these financial results implied or suggested that the Company would not be impacted by the 25 recession. ¶¶ 25, 29, 38, 45. Plaintiffs are wrong: IGT expressly warned that “[h]istorical 26 results achieved are not necessarily indicative of future prospects of IGT.” Ex. 5 (11/1/07 earnings release) at 3; Ex. 4 (11/1/07 Transcript) at 1 (“reported results should not be considered an indication of future performance”); Ex. 16 (4/17/08 earnings release) at 1 (same). In addition, as a matter of law, the federal securities laws do not impose any duty to disclose that “future prospects may not be as bright as past performance.” In re Verifone Sec. Litig., 11 F.3d 865, 869 (9th Cir. 1993); see also In re Wells Fargo Sec. Litig., 12 F.3d 922, 930 (9th Cir. 1993) (factually accurate statements of “past performance” are “clearly not materially misleading”). Thus, a securities fraud claim cannot be premised upon disclosure of accurate historical data. See In re Convergent Techs. Sec. Litig., 948 F.2d 507, 512-13 (9th Cir. 1991).³
27

B. The Forward-Looking Statements Cannot Be The Basis Of Liability

The Reform Act’s Safe Harbor was based on the “bespeaks caution” doctrine: “a mechanism by which a court can rule as a matter of law . . . that defendants’ forward looking representation contained enough cautionary language or risk disclosure to protect the defendant against claims of securities fraud.” Clorox, 353 F.3d at 1132 (quoting In re Worlds of Wonder Sec. Litig., 35 F.3d 1407, 1413 (9th Cir. 1994)). The statute provides that:

[A defendant] shall not be liable with respect to any forward looking statement, whether written or oral, if and to the extent that

(A) the forward-looking statement is

(i) identified as a forward-looking statement, and is accompanied by meaningful cautionary statements identifying important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those in the forward-looking statements[.]

15 U.S.C. § 78u-5(c)(1)(A)(i) (emphasis added).

Congress did not intend for companies to have to perform contortions to trigger the Safe Harbor. Thus, the Reform Act broadly defines “forward-looking statement” to encompass ³ See also In re Splash Tech. Holdings, Inc. Sec. Litig., 160 F. Supp. 2d 1059, 1078 (N.D. Cal. 2001) (“[s]tatements regarding past events contain no implicit prediction that those events or conditions will continue in the future”); Wenger v. Lumisys, 2 F. Supp. 2d 1231, 1245 (N.D. Cal. 1998) (“Disclosure of accurate historical data does not become misleading even if less favorable results might be predictable by the company in the future.”).

1 financial projections, management’s plans or objectives relating to the company’s products or 2 services, statements of future economic performance, and the assumptions underlying those 3 types of statements. 15 U.S.C. § 78u-5(i)(1)(A)-(D).⁴ The Safe Harbor may be invoked by 4 “stating generally that forward-looking statements . . . are made”; in other words, “statement-by-5 statement identification is not required.”⁵ In oral presentations, speakers may refer to written 6 documents containing warnings rather than having to repeat the text of the warnings themselves.
 7 See 15 U.S.C. § 78u-5(c)(2)(B); Clorox, 353 F.3d at 1133. The statute’s requirement that 8 warnings be “meaningful” “does not require a listing of all factors that might make results 9 different from those forecasted.”⁶ Nor does it require that the cautionary language warn about 10 the particular event that ultimately caused the forward-looking statement not to come true. See 11 Conference Report at 44. The provision is satisfied so long as the cautionary language lists 12 “important factors of similar significance to those actually realized.”⁷ “[I]f a statement is 13 accompanied by meaningful cautionary language, the defendants’ state of mind is irrelevant.”⁸

14 The Reform Act’s Safe Harbor also requires that on a motion to dismiss “the court shall 15 consider any statement cited in the complaint and any cautionary statement accompanying the forward-looking statement, which are not subject to material dispute, cited by the defendant.”

 15 U.S.C. § 78u-5(e). Each of the challenged IGT SEC filings, press releases, earnings calls and analyst conferences included Safe Harbor language and was accompanied by meaningful cautionary statements. Accordingly, the Safe Harbor and bespeaks caution doctrine foreclose liability based on the forward-looking statements challenged here.

1. The EPS projections were accompanied by meaningful cautionary statements

(a) 1Q08 and 3Q08 EPS guidance

At its core, this is a missed forecast case. See ¶¶ 34(f), 49(g), 57(f), 65(e). The Complaint concedes that IGT met its EPS projections in the first and third quarters, and therefore plaintiffs cannot plead that those forecasts were false or misleading.⁹

(b) 2Q08 EPS guidance

IGT did fall short of its EPS forecasts for the second and fourth quarters of fiscal 2008, which were made on a series of conference calls. ¶¶ 26, 40, 53, 61. Statements predicting future earnings are forward-looking. See 15 U.S.C. § 78u-5(i)(1)(A) (defining “forward looking statement” to include “a statement containing a projection of . . . earnings”). Defendants properly invoked the Safe Harbor on each of the conference calls by identifying statements with “forward-looking information, including forecasts of future financial performance and estimates of amounts not yet determinable, as well as our future prospects and proposed new products, services, developments or business strategies” and warning that “actual results may differ materially.” Ex. 4 at 1, Ex. 10 at 1, Ex. 14 at 1, Ex. 17 at 1. Defendants also provided ample cautionary language both on the conference calls and in referenced IGT SEC filings.

⁹ See In re IAC/InterActiveCorp Sec. Litig., 478 F. Supp. 2d 574, 586-87 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) (financial projection was not an actionable misrepresentation where it was achieved). See also In re Hutchinson Tech., Inc. Sec. Litig., 502 F. Supp. 2d 884, 898 (D. Minn. 2007) (dismissing all claims of misleading earnings projections where company met forecasts for most of class period), aff’d, 536 F.3d 952 (8th Cir. 2008).

1 IGT's SEC filings warned of vulnerability to changing economic conditions:

2 Our business is vulnerable to changing economic conditions.

3 Unfavorable changes in general economic conditions including recession, economic 4 slowdown, or higher fuel or other transportation costs, may reduce disposable 5 income of casino patrons or result in fewer patrons visiting casinos. Such a decline in 6 the relative health of the gaming industry would likely result in a decline in the 7 amount of resources our customers have to purchase our products and services. This may also result in reduced play levels, which could cause our cash flows and revenues from revenue sharing products to decline. Our operating results may be negatively impacted by a decrease in interest rates causing an increase in jackpot expense and a reduction of investment income.

8 Ex. 3 at 34 (emphasis added); see also Ex. 9 at 18 (similar).

9 Slow growth in the number of new casinos or the rate of replacement of existing gaming machines could limit or reduce our future profits.

10 Demand for our products is driven substantially by the replacement of existing 11 gaming machines, the establishment of new gaming jurisdictions, and the addition of 12 new casinos or expansion of existing casinos within existing gaming jurisdictions. . .
13 . [T]he rate of growth in the North American marketplace has diminished. A continued reduction in growth or in the number of gaming jurisdictions or delays in the opening of new or expanded casinos could reduce the demand for our products.

15 Ex. 3 at 33 (emphasis added). The Company also advised that its future results would depend 16 on successful new product introductions:

17 Our success in the competitive gaming industry depends in large part on our ability to develop and manage frequent introductions of innovative products.

18 The gaming industry is intensely competitive, and many of our competitors have 19 substantial resources and specialize in the development and marketing of their 20 products. Because the gaming industry is characterized by dynamic customer 21 demand and rapid technological advances, we must continually introduce and 22 successfully market new themes and technologies in order to remain competitive and 23 effectively stimulate customer demand. Our customers will accept a new product 24 only if it is likely to increase operator profits more than competitors' products. There is no guarantee that our new products will attain this market acceptance or that our competitors will not more effectively anticipate or respond to changing customer preferences. In addition, any delays by us in introducing new games on schedule could negatively impact our operating results by providing an opportunity for our competitors to introduce new products and gain market share ahead of us.

25 Ex. 3 at 34 (emphasis added). IGT's SEC filings also warned that risks and uncertainties 26 affecting the Company's business included "a decline in play levels" and "[d]ecreases in interest

1 rates, which in turn increases our costs to fund jackpots.” Ex. 16 at 4. Defendants also included 2 additional cautionary statements on the conference calls themselves.

3 On the November 1, 2007 call, Mr. Cavanaugh stated at the outset:

4 Actual results may differ materially from current expectations, based on a number
 5 of factors affecting IGT’s businesses, including unfavorable changes to regulations
 6 or problems with obtaining needed licenses or approvals, a decrease in the popularity 7 of our reoccurring revenue [games] or unfavorable changes in player and operator preferences, slow growth in the number of new casinos or the rate of replacement [of] existing gaming machines, [and] failure to successfully develop and manage frequent introductions of innovative products.

8 Ex. 4 at 1 (emphasis added). Defendants subsequently warned that “IGT continued to see a 9 market-wide reduction in North American replacement demand,” id. at 3, and that “the demand 10 for domestic replacement is likely to remain soft throughout fiscal ’08.” Id. at 6. Mr.
 11 Matthews explained his belief that among the factors impacting replacement sales was a “wait-12 and-see mindset” among customers given “that there is so much new technology kind of 13 waiting in the wings, and that unfortunately freezes the market a little bit in terms of purchasing 14 decisions.” Id. at 14. Mr. Cavanaugh provided a reminder that IGT’s results would be subject 15 to interest rate fluctuations: “margins and gross profit come in slightly lower when interest
 16 rates go down, and they increase when rates go up, as the cost of fund[ing] jackpots is inversely 17 related to movements in interest rates.” Id. at 2.

18 On the January 17, 2008 call, Mr. Cavanaugh again listed factors that could affect 19 IGT’s business, such as “slow growth in the number of casinos or the rate of replacement of 20 existing machines.” Ex. 10 (1/17/08 Transcript) at 1. He noted that “[f]or the second quarter, 21 we anticipate replacement demand will remain at historically low levels.” Id. at 3. Mr.
 22 Matthews echoed these concerns:

23 Obviously, we’ve been operating in a difficult environment. It has been the 24 weakest replacement demand that we’ve seen since 1998. This is going to continue 25 into Q2, but we expect that we’ll start seeing improvements to replacement demand in Q3 and Q4 coinciding with some of our product efforts.

26 Id. at 4. Defendants also expressed caution as to game play levels:

1 [O]n the surface, all we're seeing at this point is normal seasonality, but we're also
 2 conscious of the fact that without exception almost every major market in the US
 3 has reported down quarter-over-quarter gaming revenues. So we'll continue to keep a close eye on it going forward.

4 [W]here you're seeing declines in year-over-year comparisons in individual
 5 markets through most of December, we do have our eye on kind of the overall 6 trends throughout all markets and we'll be probably just as interested as all of you on what operators have got to say about what they're seeing, what kind of trends they're seeing in player demands. But otherwise, play levels are very much in line with what we'd normally see due to seasonal factors.

7 Id. at 7, 10 (emphasis added). Mr. Matthews warned of competitive risks: "our struggle is 8 really the fact that IGT has penetrated existing floors so well in the past, that we do see that 9 very slight increases of performance from certain of our competitors has allowed them to 10 increase their ship share against our efforts." Id. at 10. The Company lowered EPS projections 11 for the fiscal second quarter to be "perhaps a little bit to the weak side of [$0.35 to $0.40] in Q2 12 because of lack of visibility to new and expansion units" and warned that:

13 IGT will be moving to a more service-software revenue orientation that has an 14 expanded margin associated with that and really less reliance on product sales at 15 some point in the future. So our guidance, as a result of these drivers, is . . . because of the new product introductions, but also some uncertainty surrounding the future
market conditions especially replacement demand in the second quarter

16 Id. at 5 (emphasis added); see ¶ 41. Later in the call, Mr. Matthews reiterated that "we would 17 not be surprised if not only do we trail towards the lower end of that guidance, but that, 18 perhaps, we even miss on the low end." Id. at 12.

19 These disclosures identified important factors that might – and ultimately did – cause 20 IGT to fall short of its second quarter EPS projection: weak replacement demand and falling 21 interest rates. See Ex. 16 at 1 (reporting $0.22 EPS ($0.28 excluding one-time charges)); ¶ 51.
 22 Accordingly, the Safe Harbor forecloses plaintiffs' claims based on IGT's missed second
 23 quarter EPS forecast.¹⁰

24 _____
 25 ¹⁰ See, e.g. In re LeapFrog Enters., Inc. Sec. Litig., 527 F. Supp. 2d 1033, 1045-46 (N.D. Cal.

1 (c) 4Q08 EPS guidance

2 Defendants also disclosed additional factors that could impact IGT's fourth quarter
3 EPS, originally projected potentially to exceed $0.40. On the January call, IGT explained that 4 the possibility of exceeding that range was "subject to, of course, timely delivery of our new 5 products, and that of having associated demand that we can fill, and the timing of new and 6 expansion units taking place in accordance with what we have currently forecast." Ex. 10 at 9.

7 Mr. Cavanaugh added a new risk factor to his Safe Harbor language at the outset of the 8 April 17, 2008 call:

9 Actual results may differ materially from the current expectations based on a number 10 of factors affecting IGT's businesses. Including . . . a general decline in play levels . . .

11 Ex. 14 (4/17/08 Transcript) at 1 (emphasis added). Mr. Matthews elaborated on this risk:

12 I think that the primary impact on play levels this quarter is seasonality. That's why 13 they're up sequentially. But that year-over-year comparison, I think really going into 14 the quarter, we would have expected a slightly bigger uptick due to seasonal factors.
15 And as we started measuring both directly, since we can with our wide area 16 progressive systems, and indirectly, just seeing some of the results of the market, 17 there's no doubt that play levels maybe weren't as robust this year as were hoped 18 for. Our games always – they work because they're the most popular, and so we've 19 always said that we think they're the first games played and the last games to stop 20 being played. And so yes, I mean, we think that our products probably are slightly 21 less impacted by the overall economic impact on play levels than are other of our 22 nonparticipation games. But that said, if there's less total spend going on in a 23 casino environment, our games are going to be included in that.

19 Id. at 8-9 (emphasis added); compare ¶ 52. He also discussed the risk posed by competition:

20 "Competitors are doing a better job right now, both having access to current technologies and 21 doing a better job with their games." Ex. 14 at 8. The Company advised that its EPS guidance
22 for the second half of fiscal 2008 would remain at $0.35-$0.40. Id. at 6.¹¹

24 SACV01275GLTMLGX, 2004 WL 3390052 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 23, 2004) (applying Safe Harbor to grant partial summary judgment on claims of misleading financial projections).

25 ¹¹ The Complaint also cites Mr. Cavanaugh's remark at the end of a March 12, 2008 analyst 26 conference that "Hopefully, we are going to be able to move up in EPS ranges every few 27 months as visibility into new markets, products, et cetera improves." Ex. 13 at 7; ¶ 47. This

1 While IGT met this forecast in its third quarter, defendants provided additional 2 warnings about the declining economy generally, and play levels in particular, during the July 3 17, 2008 call.

4 [T]he conditions that we see in the marketplace are looking like they're going to 5 continue for the foreseeable future, they're unprecedented, we've never really seen 6 gaming play levels fall across all markets as we have in the first half of the year, if that continues that's going to probably weigh a little bit on our game ops business and it's probably also going to effect some amount of casino spend activity

7 Ex. 17 (7/17/08 Transcript) at 5 (emphasis added). Mr. Matthews disclosed that:

8 what had happened in the first [calendar] quarter was somewhat unprecedented, . .
 9 . in that you had gaming play levels down and you had gaming play levels down for 10 a whole host of different reasons in different markets, some of it was competitive pressures, some of it was smoking bans, some of it was the economy. You didn't 11 have a whole lot of kind of public acknowledgement of it yet because you didn't have necessarily very good visibility as to how, if, and at what degree it will 12 continue. And so I think there was some hope that it was short term in nature. It 13 turns out that April was worse, right, and May and June haven't necessarily reversed that trend. And so I do think that we have to anticipate for our business that the economic conditions are likely going to continue like this for the remainder of the calendar year

14 Id. at 9 (emphasis added). He also advised that "over 80% of our [gaming operations] revenue 15 is variable as it relates to our exposure directly to game play levels." Id. at 13. IGT also 16 lowered its projected EPS range for the fourth quarter to $0.30-$0.35. Id. at 10.

17 These disclosures clearly warned of the decline in economic conditions that caused IGT
 18 to miss its fourth quarter EPS projection. See Ex. 19 (10/30/08 earnings release) at 1 (reporting 19 $0.18 EPS ($0.28 excluding one-time charges) due to "'challenging economic operating 20 conditions affecting our customers and in turn our business'"); ¶ 72. The fourth quarter EPS
 21 projection therefore is protected by the Safe Harbor and cannot be the basis of liability.

 23 statement was not a prediction, but a non-actionable statement of a goal. Siegel v. Lyons, No. C-24 95-3588 DLJ, 1996 WL 634206 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 16, 1996), explained that "a material 25 difference exists between a concrete financial prediction or forecast and 'targets' or 'goals' for 26 future performance" and that "[t]argets' or 'goals' would only imply a false statement of fact if defendants knew that management was actually aiming for a different result." Id. at *5 & n.7.
 Plaintiffs make no such allegations here.

1 2. Projections of operating expenses as a percentage of revenues are 2 protected by the Safe Harbor

3 The Safe Harbor also protects defendants' conference call statements regarding IGT's
 4 expected operating expenses as a percentage of total revenue for fiscal 2008. See ¶¶ 28 (26%- 5 28%), 42 (26%-29%), 54 (26%-28%), 63 (25%-28%). These statements were forward-looking.
 6 See 15 U.S.C. § 78u-5(i)(1)(A) (defining "forward looking statement" as including "a statement
 7 containing a projection of . . . other financial items").¹² As set forth above, IGT provided
 8 numerous warnings concerning factors that could affect revenue, and as a result, the operating 9 expense as a percentage of revenue. See supra at 9-14. As fiscal 2008 progressed, IGT
 10 cautioned that the operating expense percentages were just above the projected range for each 11 of the second and third quarters. See Ex. 14 at 4; Ex. 17 at 4. On the July 17, 2008 conference 12 call, IGT made cautionary statements concerning operating expenses themselves:

13 Our target range for operating expense has been 25% to 28% of revenues, depending 14 on quarterly fluctuation in demand with the goal to maintain if not exceed 30% 15 operating income margins. Accordingly we have undertaken an organization wide review of our cost structure to ensure that we can achieve this goal.

16 Ex. 17 at 4.

17 [W]e acknowledge that operating expense are not at optimal levels. So, we are 18 already giving expenses company wide as Pat had reflected. The goal here is to 19 have 30% operating income margins and so if we aren't going to have the revenue 20 growth breakout that we were hoping for this year and next and still kind of waiting until 2010 for the material sb impact, then we need to manage expenses in a much more prudent and careful way . . .

21 Id. at 5. These cautionary statements are sufficient to foreclose liability.¹³

3. Defendants warned of the risks to expected demand

IGT's risk disclosures also foreclose claims based on statements of expected demand.

Plaintiffs have complained of the following statements:

- IGT "'anticipate[d] benefiting from growth in new or expanding domestic markets beginning in the second half of fiscal 2008'" (§ 31);
- "Cavanaugh conveyed that there would be growth in future sales based on estimates that there was a lot of new capacity being created by anticipated casino openings throughout the world" (§ 33);
- IGT expected "'an increase in replacement units in both Q3 and Q4, as well as the tremendous demand of new and expansion units'" (§ 38);
- "'Market expansion continues really in a very robust way even though there has [sic] been a couple of setbacks'" and "'we continue to expect an uptick in our business levels during the second half'" (§ 53); and
- "'We still believe that the industry is going to grow, and that growth is healthy despite this gaming revenue slowdown,'" "'we expect a moderate pick-up in replacement demand in the fourth quarter of 2008,'" "'we will have a good replacement quarter here in Q4'" (§ 62).¹⁴

These are forward-looking statements concerning assumptions underlying IGT's financial forecasts. See 15 U.S.C. § 78u-5(i)(1)(D) (defining "forward-looking statement" to include "any statement of the assumptions underlying or relating to" financial or business forecasts).

The statements were accompanied by the warnings set forth above, including that:

Slow growth in the number of new casinos or the rate of replacement of existing gaming machines could limit or reduce our future profits.

Demand for our products is driven substantially by the replacement of existing gaming machines, the establishment of new gaming jurisdictions, and the addition of new casinos or expansion of existing casinos within existing gaming jurisdictions. . . . [T]he rate of growth in the North American marketplace has diminished. A continued reduction in growth or in the number of gaming jurisdictions or delays ¹⁴ Courts have found similar statements to be non-actionable immaterial statements of optimism. See infra at 21. See also, e.g., Raab v. Gen. Physics Corp., 4 F.3d 286, 289-90 (4th Cir. 1993) (market for company's services had "'an expected annual growth rate of 10% to 30% over the next several years'"); In re Syntex Corp. Sec. Litig., 855 F. Supp. 1086, 1095 (N.D. Cal. 1994) ("'[w]e expect the second half of fiscal 1992 to be stronger than the first half, and the latter part of the second half to be stronger than the first'"), aff'd, 95 F.3d 922 (9th Cir. 1996).

1 in the opening of new or expanded casinos could reduce the demand for our
 2 products.

3 Ex. 3 at 33 (emphasis added). These statements therefore cannot form the basis of liability.¹⁵

4 In addition, the Complaint does not allege that increased replacement demand and sales 5 growth in the second half of fiscal 2008 failed to materialize. IGT reported unit shipments of 6 12,100 in the second quarter (Ex. 14 at 3), 20,200 in the third quarter (Ex. 17 at 2), and 20,100
 7 in the fourth quarter (Ex. 20 (10/30/08 Transcript) at 2). Compare ¶¶ 31, 53, 62. IGT also 8 disclosed increased domestic replacement demand in the fourth quarter of 4,900 units (Ex. 20 at 9 3), up from 3,600 units in the third quarter (id.) and 3,100 in the first quarter (Ex. 10 at 3).
 10 Compare ¶¶ 38, 62. Similarly, the complaint does not dispute that analysts had estimated 11 market growth based in part on legalization of gaming in new jurisdictions. See Ex. 8 (12/5/07 12 Transcript) at 3; ¶ 33. Because plaintiffs do not plead that IGT's demand statements were false, 13 these claims should be dismissed.

14 4. The game play level statements are protected by the Safe Harbor

15 The Safe Harbor also protects defendants' statements about expected trends in game 16 play levels during the Class Period. See ¶¶ 39, 52, 62. As with the demand statements, the 17 game play level statements were forward-looking statements concerning assumptions 18 underlying IGT's financial forecasts. See 15 U.S.C. § 78u-5(i)(1)(D). These statements were 19 accompanied by warnings in IGT's SEC filings, including that:

20 a decline in the relative health of the gaming industry would likely result in a decline 21 in the amount of resources our customers have to purchase our products and services.
 22 This may also result in reduced play levels[.]

23 E.g., Ex. 9 at 18. As set forth above, defendants discussed play level trends in each of the 24 January, April, and July conference calls. See supra at 11, 13-14. The Complaint cannot avoid dismissal by selective quotation – omitting the cautionary language immediately surrounding the challenged excerpts.¹⁶ The Safe Harbor expressly requires courts to consider such cautionary language.¹⁷ In light of these disclosures, the play level statements cannot be the basis of liability.

5. IGT’s statements concerning server-based gaming technology were accompanied by meaningful warnings

The Complaint includes allegations concerning IGT’s development of server-based gaming technology. See, e.g., ¶¶ 27, 55. While plaintiffs contend that issues with sb™ products undermined IGT’s second and fourth quarter 2008 financial forecasts (¶¶ 34, 49, 57, 65), the Complaint does not actually allege that IGT made any projection of revenues based on sb™ technology for that year. To the contrary, the Complaint concedes that IGT expected “to begin commercializing this product in 2009.” ¶ 27 (emphasis added); see also Ex. 9 at 24 (“we believe our sb™ applications will be commercially available beginning in 2009”).

IGT’s conference call statements concerning expectations surrounding server-based gaming technology are also protected by the Safe Harbor. The statute defines forward-looking statements to include “a statement of the plans or objectives . . . relating to the [company’s] products or services.” 15 U.S.C. § 78u-5(i)(1)(B). IGT’s SEC filings warned that “[t]here is no guarantee that our new products will attain . . . market acceptance” and that “delays by us in introducing new products on schedule could negatively impact our operating results[.]” E.g., Ex. 9 at 18-19. Defendants provided additional specific cautionary language on the calls.

On the November 1, 2007 call, Mr. Matthews said that IGT was “on target to begin commercializing this product in 2009” and “especially excited about the returns we anticipate ¹⁶ Compare ¶ 39 with Ex. 10 at 7; compare ¶ 52 with Ex. 14 at 2, 8, 11; compare ¶ 62 with Ex. 17 at 3, 5, 9.

¹⁷ Copper Mountain, 311 F. Supp. 2d at 864, 876; see 15 U.S.C. § 78u-5(e).

1 in the next few years as server-based technology is rolled out.” ¶ 27. On that same call,
2 however, he explained that IGT was still discussing with customers the pricing for sb™:

3 My guess is that pricing will remain a private conversation that we’re having with a 4 number of prospective customers. . . . We feel fairly comfortable that the pricing is 5 going to sort itself out in the way in which the operators feel as if they’re paying for 6 something that truly gains them efficiencies and increases the activity on their casino
7 floor and at the same time is fair to us for bringing what is really such an expensive 8 innovation to the industry.

9 Ex. 4 at 11. This was not a surprise, given that IGT was not expecting to start commercializing
10 sb™ products until 2009 – more than a year later. See ¶ 27.¹⁸

11 On the April 17, 2008 call, Mr. Matthews was asked whether IGT expected additional 12 announcements of sb™ technology deals following the press releases concerning the 13 Company’s selection by Harrah’s and memorandum of understanding with CityCenter. Mr.
14 Matthews responded:

15 I sure hope so. I mean, that’s our job here is to go and try to figure out ways that we 16 can expand our customer opportunities. We’re not much for making press releases, 17 as you know, as it relates to securing new business, because we think that is 18 something that we do in the ordinary course. So every systems deal we get we don’t 19 announce, and every time we get a machine order we don’t make any particular 20 celebratory noise about it; that’s what we do. And in the case of sb, I think that these 21 early adopters of Harrah’s and [CityCenter] are very important to make known. . . .
22 But over time we expect to be selling an awful lot of sb systems and probably not 23 announcing every one.

24 Ex. 14 at 10. Thus, the sound bite in the Complaint (¶ 55: “we expect to be selling an awful 25 lot of SB systems”) was not a near-term prediction, but a general statement that IGT
26 eventually expected many other deals involving sb™ technology.¹⁹

27 ¹⁸ These disclosures also undercut plaintiffs’ claims of misrepresentations concerning expected 28 higher margins associated with sb™ technology. See ¶¶ 30, 35, 41, 46. Examination of the language surrounding the excerpts in the Complaint shows that the “higher margin” statements addressed IGT’s expected shift to game operations and non-machine sales revenues generally, not just sb™ technology in particular. Compare, e.g., Ex. 6 at 7 with ¶ 30 (“IGT ‘become[s] less focused on hardware deliveries, and more focused on providing software solutions [like SB technology] that that naturally migrates you to a higher margin’” (emphasis in Complaint)); see also Ex. 9 at 1; Ex. 10 at 5; Ex. 13 (3/12/08 Transcript) at 2. The Complaint does not dispute that IGT’s game operations and non-machine sales provided higher margins than machine sales.

1 Plaintiffs also claim that Mr. Matthews made a false and misleading statement on the 2 April 17, 2008 call when he said that IGT was “‘comfortable that we will accomplish’ delivery
 3 of version ‘4.0’ of the SB technology to CityCenter upon CityCenter’s opening.” ¶ 55. Again, 4 this statement was qualified by cautionary language. Mr. Matthews explained that

5 [T]he challenge, of course, is that we are developing a very broad system from 6 scratch, and so just maintaining proper product definition and meeting those 7 internal timelines is really the challenge. And of course along the way we’ve 8 changed specifications somewhat of the underlying technologies. We have 9 redefined some of the applications that we have as priorities, and still are working 10 with customers to make sure that we kind of meet their initial requirements for the 11 product. So there’s some movement of parts as far as that is concerned. But I think we feel comfortable that we have the resources necessary for timely delivery, 4.0 is due right around that CityCenter opening. And so where we are hoping that it’s deployed, it is 3.2, as we previously said that we for sure will have deployed in that property. And so if everything goes well, we have perhaps 4.0 in advance of that opening, or maybe shortly thereafter.

12 Ex. 14 at 11-12. IGT separately disclosed that CityCenter was “scheduled to open in late 13 2009,” that the installation would be “the first . . . of its kind,” and that IGT would “continue to 14 work with MGM Mirage and our other test locations that have been working with us on the 15 development and testing of these new products to refine the various aspects of the system and 16 prepare for CityCenter’s floorwide deployment.” Ex. 15 (4/17/08 press release) at 1. Mr.
 17 Matthews’ timeline statement is not actionable in light of all this cautionary language. See
 18 Clorox, 353 F.3d at 1133 (Safe Harbor foreclosed liability based on timetable estimate).²⁰

21 ¹⁹ This statement also is not actionable because it is a “vague statement of corporate optimism
 22 that is not subject to objective verification.” See infra at 21-22; Impac, 554 F. Supp. 2d at 1096 23 (statement that “[w]e continue to expect solid loan acquisitions and originations” was nonactionable “generalized assertions of corporate optimism”) (citing Glen Holly Entm’t, Inc. v.

C. The Alleged Omissions From Announcements Concerning Harrah's and CityCenter Are Not Actionable

Plaintiffs challenge IGT's press releases announcing anticipated sb™ installations at Harrah's and CityCenter. ¶¶ 44, 50. The Complaint does not dispute that the statements in the press releases were accurate. Instead, plaintiffs contend that the announcements were misleading because defendants omitted to disclose that "IGT was required to provide the technology" "for free for as long as two years" and therefore the agreements "had no prospects of creating revenues for IGT for several years" ¶¶ 44, 49(f), 50, 65(d).²¹ Plaintiffs are wrong.

The press releases made no reference to expected revenues from the transactions. Rather, the announcements made clear that IGT had yet to work out the terms of the deals. The Harrah's installation was "subject to Harrah's corporate approvals, execution of definitive agreement, and receipt of required regulatory approvals." Ex. 12 (2/13/08 press release) at 1. Similarly, the CityCenter press release announced a "formal memorandum of understanding" rather than a definitive agreement. Ex. 15 at 1. Because defendants had no duty to disclose any revenue projections associated with the transactions, the Complaint fails to state an actionable omission. See Verifone, 11 F.3d at 870.²² Indeed, IGT already had disclosed separately that there was no set pricing model for sb™ installations and that commercialization would not begin until 2009. See supra at 18-19.

²¹ While the Complaint cites CW#8 for its allegation that IGT would "provide the technology . . . for free for at least two years" to CityCenter (¶ 65(d)), it provides no basis whatsoever for plaintiffs' assertion that IGT was doing this for Harrah's (¶ 49(f)).

Mass. 1998) (dismissing claim based on alleged misleading press release announcing company's deal to begin testing products on customer's network; company had no duty to specify that the customer had no commitment to purchase products); In re DSP Group, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. C-95-4025 CAL, 1997 WL 678151, at *4 -*5 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 5, 1997) (announcements of license agreements were not rendered misleading by omission to state that no revenues would be produced immediately; these were accurate statements of historical fact and there was no duty to disclose any revenue projections based on those licenses).

1 D. Vague Statements Of Corporate Optimism Are Not Actionable

2 Statements that are “generalized, vague and unspecific assertions, constituting mere 3 ‘puffery’” cannot constitute actionable misrepresentations. Glen Holly, 352 F.3d at 379
4 (affirming dismissal of fraud and negligent misrepresentation claims). Courts “routinely 5 dismiss” securities claims based on vague, subjective statements of corporate optimism, 6 because such statements are immaterial as a matter of law.²³ The Complaint here challenges a 7 number of statements nearly identical to those that other courts have found to be non-actionable 8 “puffery”:

- 9 • IGT is the “‘clear technology leader,’” “‘best in class,’” and has an “‘industry 10 leading portfolio” of intellectual property (¶¶ 27, 46);²⁴
- 11 • Innovative products would “‘drive market growth in coming years” and “‘assure 12 that future prospects are solid” (¶ 27);²⁵
- 13 • “‘innovation is a key component of our business strategy” (¶ 28);²⁶
- 14 • IGT is “‘focused” (¶ 46) and has made a “‘commitment” to development of 15 server-based gaming technology (¶ 44);²⁷

- 2 • We “made progress in achieving our long-term objectives” (¶ 55).²⁹

3
4 These immaterial “puffing” statements cannot form the basis of a securities fraud claim.

5 III. THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO PLEAD A STRONG INFERENCE OF SCIENTER

6 Whether or not plaintiffs have set forth any actionable statements, the Complaint should 7 be dismissed for failure to plead “a strong inference” that defendants acted with scienter.

8 Allegations meet this “strong inference” standard only if, taken collectively, they create an 9 inference of scienter that is “cogent and at least as compelling as any opposing inference of 10 nonfraudulent intent.” Tellabs Inc. v. Makor Issues & Rights, Ltd., 551 U.S. 308, 309 (2007).

11 Courts should consider all available inferences in deciding whether scienter has been alleged 12 sufficiently, and courts can draw those inferences in favor of either party. Id.; see also forward-looking statements, which form the basis of nearly all of the claims here, the required state of mind is “‘actual knowledge . . . that the statement[s were] false and misleading’ at the time made.” Clorox, 353 F.3d at 1134 (emphasis added); *In re Daou Sys., Inc. A. The “CW” Allegations Do Not Support a Strong Inference of Scienter

The Complaint cites information from eight confidential witnesses (“CW”s) to try to establish scienter. See, e.g., ¶¶ 34(b)-(e), 49(b)-(e), 57(b)-(e), 65(b)-(d). The Ninth Circuit recently confirmed that “a complaint relying on statements from confidential witnesses must pass two hurdles to satisfy the PSLRA’s pleading requirements.” Zucco Partners, 552 F.3d at 995. First, the information provided by the CWs must be “indicative of scienter,” i.e., it must show that defendants knew their statements were false when made. Id. at 994. Absent specifics as to what each defendant knew and when he knew it, the Court “cannot ascertain whether there is any basis for the allegations that the officers had actual or constructive knowledge of [the company’s] problems that would cause their optimistic representations to the contrary to be consciously misleading.” Silicon Graphics, 183 F.3d at 985. Second, “allegations attributed to unnamed sources must be accompanied by enough particularized detail to support a reasonable conviction in the informant's base of knowledge.'" Zucco Partners, LLC v. Digimarc Corp., 445 F. Supp. 2d 1201, 1204 (D. Or. 2006), aff'd, 552 F.3d 981 (9th Cir. 2009) (quoting In re NorthPoint Commc'ns Group, Inc., Sec. Litig., 221 F. Supp. 2d 1090, 1097 (N.D. Cal. 2002)). The CW allegations here fail both tests.

None of the CW allegations provides a strong inference that defendants knew, at the time the statements were made, that IGT's financial forecasts or expectations for demand, play levels³² and SB technology would not be met. The CW allegations have no bearing on defendants' knowledge: none of the CWs is alleged to have been a member of senior management or to have had any contact with Mr. Matthews or Mr. Cavanaugh. See ¶ 34.³³ "General allegations of defendants' 'hands-on' management style, their interaction with other officers and employees, their attendance at meetings, and their receipt of unspecified weekly or monthly reports," like those offered here (¶ 79), "are insufficient." Daou, 411 F.3d at 1022 (citing Vantive, 283 F.3d at 1087). The CW allegations would not create a strong inference of scienter even if true and known to defendants at the time. The allegations simply point to normal obstacles in the course of business. As the Ninth Circuit has stated:

Problems and difficulties are the daily work of business people. That they exist does not make a lie out of any of the alleged false statements.

³² None of the CW allegations even mention play levels. Contrary to the Complaint (see ¶ 73), there was no admission on the October 30, 2008 call of prior misrepresentations concerning play levels. The October statements were consistent with the information provided by defendants on prior calls. See supra at 11, 13-14. See also In re Read-Rite Corp. Sec. Litig., 335 F.3d 843, 848 (9th Cir. 2003) (affirming dismissal and finding that post-Class Period "admissions" were not inconsistent with defendants' prior statements).

³³ See In re Medicis Pharm. Corp. Sec. Litig., 689 F. Supp. 2d 1192, 1211-12 (D. Ariz. 2009) (rejecting CW allegations because "Plaintiffs do not provide any information linking CW 2 with the Defendants or giving him personal knowledge of the Defendants' state of mind").

1 Ronconi v. Larkin, 253 F.3d 423, 434 (9th Cir. 2001) (affirming dismissal).³⁴

2 Here, CW#7's allegations concerning competition and lack of customer interest in AVP
3 machines are irrelevant given that the stated expectations concerning demand were met. See
4 supra at 17. The allegations from various CWs concerning alleged missed internal deadlines, 5 in-fighting between groups of employees, software integration issues, and a lack of leadership
6 (§§ 34(b), 49(b), 57(b)) are consistent with IGT's own cautionary statements (see supra at 20)
7 and do not demonstrate any actual knowledge by defendants that SB could not be developed for 8 commercialization over the coming years.³⁵ Similarly, CW#6 alleges that IGT Labs purchased 9 obsolete memory sticks, but provides no other information such as the amount spent or the 10 timing of that purchase. See §§ 34(d), 49(d), 57(c), 65(b). Without such information, there can 11 be no strong inference that it was not possible for IGT to meet its target operating expenses as a 12 percentage of revenue, or that defendants actually knew this to be the case.³⁶

13 In addition, the Complaint fails to provide the requisite details indicating that the CW 14 allegations should be given any weight. Plaintiffs provide the CWs' job titles but little else. See 15 § 34. The Complaint does not explain what the CWs' job responsibilities were, what individuals

1 they worked with, or how they obtained their information.³⁷ Without such corroborating details,
 2 the allegations attributed to these CWs must be rejected because there is no way to ascertain 3 whether they are “speaking from personal knowledge” or “merely regurgitating gossip and 4 innuendo.”³⁸ Allegations that may have originated from “hallway conversations” and “vague
 5 claims of common knowledge” do not demonstrate scienter.³⁹

6 B. The Alleged Stock Sales Do Not Support A Strong Inference of Scienter

7 The Complaint also points to Class Period stock sales by certain IGT officers and 8 directors as indicating defendants’ motive to commit securities fraud. ¶¶ 79-84. These stock 9 sales allegations do not create a strong inference of scienter. As an initial matter, five of the six 10 alleged sellers – Messrs. Bittman, Burt, Ciorciari, Johnson, Morro and Pennington – are not 11 defendants in this action and are not alleged to have made any misstatements. These 12 individuals’ sales therefore are not probative of scienter.⁴⁰

 Supp. 2d 871, 898 (W.D.N.C. 2001) (“Plaintiffs’ inclusion of allegations regarding stock sales

1 The only alleged sales by defendants in the Complaint are Mr. Matthews's sales of 2 November 19-20, 2007. ¶ 80. Realizing that equity is a significant part of executive
 3 compensation, the Ninth Circuit has held that plaintiffs who rely on stock sales to plead scienter 4 have the burden to provide specific allegations showing that the sales were suspicious in 5 magnitude and “dramatically out of line with prior trading practices at times calculated to 6 maximize the personal benefit from undisclosed inside information.” Zucco Partners, 552 F.3d
 7 at 1005; see also Silicon Graphics, 183 F.3d at 986 (trades must be suspicious in timing or 8 amount). Plaintiffs have not done so here.

9 Mr. Matthews' sales were not suspicious in amount. While plaintiffs allege that the 10 sales comprised 27% of Mr. Matthews' IGT stock, the Ninth Circuit explained that the correct 11 inquiry is not the percentage of stock sold, but the percentage of stock and vested options sold:

12 [W]e can see no reason to distinguish vested stock options from shares because 13 vested stock options can be converted easily to shares and sold immediately. Actual 14 shares plus exercisable stock options represent the owner's trading potential more accurately than the stock shares alone.

15 Silicon Graphics, 183 F.3d at 986-87. Mr. Matthews sold only 13% of his total holdings, i.e.
 16 stock and vested options.⁴¹ The Ninth Circuit has held that where the CEO of a company sold 17 only 13% of his stock and vested options, “his trading percentage belies any intent to rid himself 18 of a substantial portion of his holdings.” Vantive, 283 F.3d at 1094. Even assuming 27% was 19 the correct figure (it is not), the Ninth Circuit has found that stock sales in similar or even 20 greater percentages do not support an inference of scienter.⁴² Moreover, in contrast to the

 22 ⁴¹ The percentage of total holdings sold is determined by dividing the number of shares sold 23 during the class period by the sum of the number of shares sold during the class period and the 24 number of shares and vested options beneficially owned at the end of the class period. Here, the calculation is as follows: $379,658 / (379,658 + 1,048,600 + 1,500,000) = 12.96\%$. See Ex. 25 (11/21/07 Forms 4); Ex. 26 (5/13/08 Forms 4); Ex. 27 (11/18/08 Forms 4); Ex. 21 (1/16/09 Schedule DEF 14A) at 31-32.

25 ⁴² See, e.g., Metzler Inv. GMBH v. Corinthian Colleges, Inc., 540 F.3d 1049, 1067 (9th Cir.
 26 2008) (no inference of scienter where insider “sold only 37% of his total stock”); Vantive, 283
 F.3d at 1094 (sales of 26% were not “terribly ‘unusual’ or suspicious”). See also In re Taleo

1 alleged $15.5 million in gross proceeds from the sales (¶ 80), Mr. Matthews's net proceeds were 2 only approximately $631,000.⁴³

3 Mr. Matthews' sales also are not suspicious in timing. In both Zucco Partners and 4 Silicon Graphics, the Ninth Circuit indicated that stock sales are not suspicious unless 5 "calculated to maximize the personal benefit from undisclosed inside information." Zucco
6 Partners, 552 F.3d at 1005; Silicon Graphics, 183 F.3d at 986. Here, Mr. Matthews' sales 7 occurred in November 2007 – two months prior to IGT's announcement that it had achieved its 8 financial forecast for the first quarter of fiscal 2008. The trades took place at a distinctly 9 disadvantageous time for Mr. Matthews: IGT's stock price closed lower on November 19, 2007
10 than on any other day between September 13, 2007 and January 11, 2008. See Ex. 1. The Ninth 11 Circuit in Ronconi held that similar stock sales did not support an inference of scienter. 253 12 F.3d at 436. There, the stock was trading at higher price two months after the sales and "the 13 below-expectation earnings report" was not released until three months later. Id. at 435. The 18 sales of 38% and 61% of defendants' holdings did not support inference of scienter); Kairalla v.

19 Advanced Med. Optics, Inc., No. 07-cv-5569, 2008 WL 2879087, at *9 (C.D. Cal. June 6, 2008)
20 (stock sales of 26% of defendant's holdings did not support inference of scienter); In re Pixar
21 Sec. Litig., 450 F. Supp. 2d 1096, 1105 (N.D. Cal. 2006) (stock sales of 25% did not support 22 inference of scienter); In re FVC.com Sec. Litig., 136 F. Supp. 2d 1031, 1038-40 (N.D. Cal.
23 2000) (sales of 29% and 31% were "insufficient to support an inference of scienter"), aff'd, 32 24 Fed. Appx. 338 (9th Cir. 2002); Wenger, 2 F. Supp. 2d at 1238 n.6 (sales of 26%, 38%, 25%, 25 and 32% were not suspicious).

26 ⁴³ In 2008 the top federal income tax rate, inclusive of Medicare taxes, was 36.45%. IGT's 27 closing stock price on November 19, 2007 was $40.95. Therefore, the after-tax proceeds that 28 Mr. Matthews received for selling 379,658 shares after exercising the underlying options at $17.50 were approximately $5,658,000. This was almost totally offset by the cost of exercising an additional 192,977 options and holding the shares. Mr. Matthews paid $17.50 per option exercised and also incurred an immediate tax liability of approximately $8.55 per option. Thus, the total cost of exercising those options was approximately $26.05 per option, or about $5,027,000. Mr. Matthews' net proceeds were only about $631,000 ($5,658,000 - $5,027,000).

1 court explained: “When insiders miss the boat this dramatically, their sales do not support an 2 inference [of scienter]. . . .” *Id.*⁴⁴

3 Finally, the Complaint does not plead that Mr. Matthews’ sales were “dramatically out
4 of line with prior trading practices.” Zucco Partners, 552 F.3d at 1005. “For individual
5 defendants’ stock sales to raise an inference of scienter, plaintiffs must provide a ‘meaningful 6 trading history’ for purposes of comparison to the stock sales within the class period.” Id.
7 “[P]laintiffs can get the insider trading reports from the Securities and Exchange Commission” 8 Ronconi, 253 F.3d at 436-37. Here, plaintiffs merely allege that Mr. Matthews sold no stock in 9 the twelve-month period preceding November 2007. ¶ 83. This twelve-month slice of trading 10 history is not “meaningful.” Mr. Matthews joined IGT’s board of directors in 2001 and has 11 made numerous stock sales during his tenure with the Company. For example, in February 12 2006 Mr. Matthews sold approximately 580,000 shares of IGT stock. Ex. 24 (2/15/06 Forms 4).
13 Plaintiffs’ limited comparison with the months leading up to the Class Period does not support a 14 strong inference of scienter. Ronconi, 253 F.3d at 437 (trading history limited to seven months 15 preceding class period was insufficient to support strong inference of scienter).⁴⁵

For the foregoing reasons, the Complaint should be dismissed in its entirety.
